Uefa League of Nations and Champions League matches wrapped up, attention again shifted to the Premier League campaign as the gameweek six plays this weekend with Chelsea travelling to Old Trafford to face Manchester United. Don't miss a moment with our Man United v Chelsea live stream guide. Source: Android Central hosts Manchester United currently sit in 14th place after four matches in the Premier League, registering two wins and two defeats. In the last league match, the Red Devils beat Newcastle United 4-1 and were also hammered 6-1 by Tottenham Hotspur. Man United are also up for the Carabao Cup quarter-finals after defeating Brighton in the final round. In the last outing, Ole Gunnar Solskjær's men defeated French champions Paris Saint-Germain in the Champions League group stage, so things could look up. A late Marcus Rashford goal secured a 2-1 win against last year's finalists. Chelsea also had a mixed performance bag. Pensioners 2020/21 The Premier League campaign has recorded two wins, two defeats and one draw so far and currently sits in eighth place. Frank Lampardo's side were knocked out of the Carabao Cup in the 16th round by London rivals Tottenham. Chelsea also took part in European football in the middle of the week, and a goalless draw was the result of their first Champions League group stage match against last year's Europa League winners Sevilla. Easier games (at least on paper) await group stage games before Krasnodar and Rennes are approaching.
